New York—WASHINGTON—Paris

Beginning To-day, Store Will Remain Open Evenings Until Christmas.

This Eight-Acre Store

Is Filled With a Vast Collection of Articles Especially Suitable for Christmas Gifts.

At no time of the year is the helpfulness of this great store so widely appreciated as during the Christmas holidays. Occupying as it does practically a square of ground, with ten wide doors opening on its four boundary streets, it is pre-eminently the shopping center of Washington.

Each floor has an acre of space, and there are eight floors. Broad windows admit a flood of natural light that reveals to the best advantage all the splendid and beautiful qualities of the stocks displayed.

Wide aisles and thoroughly up-to-date ventilating systems complete the most perfectly sanitary conditions possible.

Nine commodious elevators carry the thousands of patrons to the upper floors, and courteous clerks are ready to attend to their wants.

We would be pleased to have you pay a personal visit to the store and mingle with the vast holiday throng. If that is not possible, the shopping organization of our Mail Order Department will attend to your wants.

Everything that a wide-awake management of a modern mercantile establishment can do to bring its service to a state of absolute efficiency has been done by us. Delivery of goods is prompt and accurate—but to avoid any possible delay that might occur during these busy days we would suggest that, when convenient, customers will kindly take small packages with them.

Purchases made here and intended for out-of-town friends packed for forwarding by mail or express. No charge for the packing.

The store offers you its improved and unmatched facilities, confident that it can care for you in every way.

CHRISTMAS STAMPS FOR SALE

Red Cross Will Raise Money to Fight Tuberculosis.

Adopts Novel Plan of Asking Shoppers to Place Charity Reminder on Gift Packages and Letters.

Last summer Mr. Jacob Rills published a magazine article on the "Christmas Stamp" in Denmark, the proceeds of the sale of which built a hospital for tubercular children in that country.

This year the Red Cross is beginning its assistance in the campaign against that most terrible of pestilences—tuberculosis—by the sale of the "Merry Christmas" stamp. One hundred and fifty thousand men, women, and children die every year in our country from this appalling scourge. Thousands of families are left without father or mother because of it. Homes are desolate because of the loss of the children from its ravages, and wage-earners are taken from those who depend upon them for support.

Next autumn the greatest anti-tuberculosis congress ever assembled will meet in Washington. Prominent men from all over the world will attend it, ex-President Loubet of France being among those expected.

The Red Cross, whose charter directs it to carry on and apply a system "in mitigating the sufferings caused by pestilence," and "to devise and carry on measures for preventing the same," has entered the field in the campaign against this pestilence. It plans to establish a Red Cross day camp for consumptives next summer, where fresh air, good food, and hours of rest in reclining chairs will bring back to health to those upon whom the scourge has begun to lay its terrible hand.

Boston has two of these day camps, and in time, if the Red Cross can establish a network of these over the country, an army will be at work in the campaign against tuberculosis, and the Christmas letter and Christmas package which carry the little Red Cross stamp will play a great part in this struggle.

Mr. Rills has sent the following letter to the Red Cross:
December 12, 1907.
I am more than delighted that you have taken up the Christmas stamp idea. I had thought of it as a national post-office enterprise, but perhaps this is even better.
I congratulate you with all my heart, and hope to see the movement spread over the whole country, when we can all help. I am especially glad that you are working on the greatest and the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. That is as it should be.
More power to you all. The world "do more," and we shall yet live in wonder that we let the white plague scourge us so long, when to wipe it out was so simple. Faithfully yours,
JACOB A. RILLS.

The Rockefeller Ancestry.

From Leslie's Weekly.

The Rockefeller family association, of which, by the way, John D. is not a member, though many of its members claim kinship with him, has traced the history of the name back to the south of France, where there is still a Baron Rockefeller.

The French Rockefellers, being mostly Huguenots, went to South Germany after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes; hence the Teutonic form of the name. The first Rockefeller came to America in 1720.
